JMJ Launches New, User-Focused Website

Austin, TX April 24 2018—JMJ, the leader in ensuring everyone gets home safely after work - even in the world's most high risk industries - is pleased to announce their new website. Designed to give visitors the information they want quickly, clearly, and intuitively, the JMJ website shows the life-changing results that happen when organizations put their people above everything else.

Client breakthroughs from best-in-class in safety performance to savings of hundreds of millions of dollars on projects brought in early and under budget are a few of the results. The new website makes these stories easy to find. Visitors can see success stories, read testimonials from clients, find the latest news, schedule a consultation, it is a completely updated user-friendly experience with improved navigation and functionality.

New features include:

- Look ahead navigation reduces the number of user clicks. Users are always one click away from the information they are looking for.
- Success Story filters which allows users to easily narrow down to industry specific stories
- Request for information is faster and streamlined on every page.
- Mobile first design is compatible with all browsers and mobile devices.

Visitors to the new site can keep up with the latest industry news through the online blog. The blog will contain valuable, multi-media content that is industry specific and include operational tips, featured events, seminars and newsletters. It's an important part of how JMJ works to solve complex challenges and drive performance for every client.
